My name is Xiangjie Ren, I come from China, I had study two years in china and now I attend to two plus two deal degree program, so the last two years I study in American. And after my statistics course I have a ability to analysis the data like human performance changes data. My background is one of selling ideas, concept and programs, and of motivating myself and others to realize our potential. Attitudes predict behavior-or so goes the saying in sales management as I am in my college endeavors. My unceasing optimism, self-determination and ability to set goals have allowed me to achieve academic and personal objectives, some of my accomplishments include:

- developed a tool to track and forecast price, quantity, and revenue, which enables client to monitor business performance
- Implemented a customized end-to-end testing process and SQL database

Because of my “can do” attitude, sales will provide the challenge and opportunity to continue my successful history of setting and achieving goals. Please allow me the opportunity to elaborate on how my background predicts sales success. I guarantee you’ll be providing your corporation with an outstanding sales management. Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,

Xiangjie Ren
